Advocating for ecological landscape practices through education, collaboration, and outreach.

From the Editor

ELA celebrates its 25th Annual Conference & Eco-Marketplace next month. Though format and location have changed through the years, the Conference continues to feature top rate speakers, passionate attendees, and dedicated sponsors and exhibitors. We're honoring this milestone by recognizing our members. If you're attending the conference, be sure to stop by the membership table and pick up a pin. Have you been a member 5 years? 10 years? Pick the pin that matches your engagement with ELA and take a minute to share your story about how you became involved with ELA. We'll feature member stories over the next several months. If you can't make it to the Conference, we still want to hear your story. Send us an email. Check ELA News for additional ELA social events.

Articles this month give us a look at a few more of the 2019 conference presentations. We look at urban forests and at stormwater solutions. We also see how one environmental designer is using three-dimensional models to great advantage. Only a few days remain for early registration discounts. Join us at the conference to catch presentations by our newsletter authors. Brush up on the latest developments in ecological land care, network with exhibitors and your peers, and discover more ways to sustain the living landscape area. MPS

The Birds and the Trees: Managing the Urban Forest for Wildlife by Dr. Susannah Lerman

Trees and shrubs provide ecosystem services and societal benefits in urban and suburban environments. They also provide vital habitat for birds, pollinators, and other wildlife. A new tool correlates habitat requirements for songbirds, evaluates the bird habitat potential at ecoregion scales, and can guide habitat improvement plans. Read the article. Dr. Lerman presents on the same topic Wednesday, March 6, at ELA's 25th Conference & Eco-Marketplace.

Ten Reasons to Make Hand Built Three-Dimensional Models

by Bryan Quinn

Showing examples of previous work can get a client to consider other visions. Another option, build a three-dimensional site model. The author shares ten reasons he advocates for 3-D models and shares how his company incorporates model building into their projects. Read the article.

Mr. Quinn presents "The Role of Landscape in our Global Environmental Crisis" Thursday, March 7 at ELA's 25th Conference & Eco-Marketplace.

Greening Greenfield

by Julie Snell and Michele Adams

Albert Greenfield Elementary School in Philadelphia was the first school in the district to implement a "green schoolyard." This project was an early example of how public landscapes in the city can offer significant connections to the natural world, benefiting students and the community. Read the article. Ms. Adams and Ms. Snell present "Reconnecting Water, Soils, and Vegetation: Green Infrastructure in the Urban Environment" Wednesday, March 6 at ELA's 25th Conference & Eco-Marketplace.

Sustainable Stormwater Using Bioretention: Engineering Better Water Quality

by Dr. Allen P. Davis

As (sub)urban growth continues to consume undeveloped land, stormwater runoff from impervious surfaces grows in importance as a contributor to water resources degradation. Bioretention is promoted as a low-impact stormwater management practice to mitigate impacts of impervious surfaces. Learn how bioretention can most effectively treat pollutants. Third Celebrating Native Plants Tour!

Showcase your native plant garden on ELA's Third Annual Celebrating Native Plants Garden Tour. Whether it's a garden you've nurtured and maintained over decades or just installed at your own or a client's property, ELA invites you to share your passion for native plants on Saturday afternoon June 22. Registered guests will visit gardens around Massachusetts to share, discuss, and discover the beauty and ecosystem value of native plants. (Hosts determine the number of visitors.) Take advantage of this opportunity to inspire greater use of native plants.
